Additional Information:

Join us as we watch the movie "Home" and are led by Yann Arthus-Bertrand on a spectacular visual journey of our planet.

The film highlights the development of life on earth, and the beauty and abundance of our natural surroundings. It puts in perspective the scale of time spanning the creation of life on earth, the arrival of human beings 200,000 years ago, and the acceleration of our impact on the environment particularly in the last 50 years.

In these terms, "Home" is a visual experience that inspires us to look outside our own personal lives to consider our role in the current condition of our environment and ponder what this will mean for future generations.

"Home" successfully communicates a deeper awareness about the role of human beings on our planet. I encourage you all to experience this movie!
